Title: Health Science Program Admission

Related Policy: 5.1.1 Admissions

Division of Responsibility: Learning; Student Success and Enrollment Management

College of The Albemarle's (College) Health Science and Wellness Programs are designated as limited enrollment programs. Factors for admission include, but are not limited to: clinical space availability, instructor-to-student ratios specified by the applicable accrediting/approving agencies and/or other limited instructional resources. In addition, Health Science Programs may have additional student enrollment criteria including, but not limited to: 1) successful completion of required developmental courses; 2) minimum GPA requirements; 3) successful completion of clinical enrollment requirements (i.e., criminal and drug background checks); and 4) other content criteria.

Criteria, deadlines, and other information related to admission and progression for these programs are provided through each program's Admission Fact Sheet and the College's Health Sciences Admission Comparison Grid posted on each program website page and in written materials distributed throughout the college advising areas. Information on admission and other requirements of these programs are also posted in each program handbook located on the Student Resources/Library page of the College website, under Program Handbooks and Outcomes.

These materials are updated annually or more frequently as needed for publishing of deadline dates and details of program admission.
