Making HR approachable and accessible can enhance trust and improve relationships. -Wellness Programs: Organize wellness challenges, health screenings, and fitness activities. Promoting physical and mental well-being demonstrates the college's commitment to supporting the whole employee. -Professional Development Opportunities: Offer and promote training, workshops, and certification programs that align with employees' career goals. Providing pathways for growth helps employees feel valued and invested in by the college. - Supervisor Training: Provide regular training for supervisors on effective communication, conflict resolution, and team-building strategies. Well-equipped supervisors are more likely to build positive relationships with their teams and contribute to a supportive work environment. Regular Check-Ins and Stay Interviews: Encourage supervisors to hold regular one-on-one meetings and "stay interviews" with their team members to discuss goals, concerns, and job satisfaction. These conversations demonstrate a commitment to employees' success and well-being. -Encourage Coaching and Mentorship: Promote a culture of coaching within the college where supervisors and more experienced employees can mentor and support newer team members. Positive mentorship relationships strengthen connections within departments and foster a sense of belonging.	Human Resources President's Leadership Team	1.1 Fall 2024 Target = 92% (1 percentage point increase) Fall 2024 Actual = 1.2 2025 Survey Target = 3.80 (2.5% increase)
